

Community kitchens for the great outdoors!

Spacehive are launching an exciting initiative to design outdoor kitchens for vibrant communities across London.

Outdoor kitchens have been popular in America for years. They're a simple, affordable and fun addition to streetscapes and parks that act as a social magnet. Why not bring them to London?

We want to create original new design icons across the capital. We already have a number of architectural practices excited at the prospect of designing this new piece of street furniture.

The kitchens will provide the perfect platform to host a range of activities, from local families sharing their recipes, to a celebrity cook-off to kick things off.

The kitchens will be funded directly by the public via Spacehive – an award-winning new funding platform for capital neighbourhood improvement projects.

Spacehive provides an online marketplace where architects can pitch project ideas direct to the communities that stand to benefit from them.

The kitchens are intended as the first of many, with the aim that communities elsewhere can choose their favourite design and fund their own outdoor kitchen.

We're looking for sites to host an outdoor kitchen. If you're interested please get in touch with maddie@spacehive.com .
